Cumming, Wilfred T., Calgary; University of Edinburgh (Scotland), 1935; FRCS(Ed.); former staff, Three Hills Municipal Hospital. Died Aug. 25, 2003; survived by 3 children. His son Gordon stated: “Despite leaving school at age 14, he persevered with night classes until he gained entrance to Edinburgh University. Inspired by stories of great explorers and missionaries, and fuelled by a deep and abiding faith, he dreamed of a life of service in foreign lands. This led to a position at a medical college in Manchuria, and while in China he met an American missionary, Mary Gauntz, and she would be the love of his life for 64 years. The war interrupted his China years, and the road then led to Northern Ontario, where he became the first doctor to join the Red Cross Community Doctor Service. He then spent time in Scotland, India and Pakistan, and his final 19 years in practice were in Three Hills, Alta.”
