

Histopathological examination of the tissue revealed an abundant admixture of acute and chronic inflammatory infiltrate with necrosis and large non-septate, pleomorphic, thin-walled fungal hyphae with irregular contours. The microorganisms are clustered around blood vessels.(hematoxylin and  $eosin \times 40$ )

Appendix 1, as submitted by the authors. Appendix to: Vanugopal A, Marya A. Palatal mucormycosis in a patient with SARS-CoV-2 infection. CMAJ 2021. doi: 10.1503/cmaj.211026. Copyright © 2021 The Author(s) or their employer(s). To receive this resource in an accessible format, please contact us at cmajgroup@cmaj.ca.